

although the current leadership of the FCC sees regulation as an enemy, i believe that the removal of cross ownership regulations will result in an even bleaker media culture, with less substance, moree cross promotion and less diverse opinions. the major media corporations are not representing the wants and needs of the american citizenry.